

An atheist argument

Well you are an atheist to other gods like Thor and Zeus and all the other world religions because you don't believe in those gods.

First of all, the very definition of atheist is a belief in no god. That is like saying a man who is married is a bachelor in respect to all the other women he is not married to. This is just a trick by the atheist to make you think you are really atheistic. I might say something like this "You know what in that perspective I guess you could make that point. But am I an atheist?"

Of course the answer is no.

Then I am not an atheist am I? There is only one true and living God. So I could say you are a theist because you serve and worship yourself and you make yourself out to be God. So you see this argument just isn't logical and doesn't make any sense.