

And here – Mardi turns the tables and suggests that it is I who is defaming her. I will leave it to the viewer to decide who is defaming who and who it is that has the fixation on campaigners.

Maybe I can help here - you see if I put up a link to where I have / am being defamed - I'm not putting a link up to where other members of the group are being attacked - am I ?

Boring, Senseless and Paranoia

Once again, it appears a couple of mental health campaigners/advocates, call them what you will, seem hellbent on trying to discredit my name.

Talk about unrelenting! The Bonnie & Clyde of the mental health advocacy world just cannot get to grips with what it is I am trying to achieve. They seem to think, it would appear, that my meetings with the MHRA are all to do with Seroxat - they are wrong. Despite the minutes of the first meeting I had with the MHRA back in September 2008 being published, they both still think my discussions are all to do with Seroxat. [1]

Mardi Bennett has recently made a statement on her blog regarding recent discussions she had with Simon Gregor of the MHRA. For those of you that are unaware... or even care, Mardi is the girlfriend of Jeremy Bryce - at least she was. Back in 2004 Jeremy Bryce was posting as 'Morse' on a couple of Internet forums. He came under fire from various members and Mardi, who was herself posting as 'Tuesday', jumped to his defence. She signed off, 'Tuesday, Morse's girlfriend.' [2]

Mardi has recently created her own blog, unlike her boyfriend, who seems to be infatuated with me, she focuses on issues pertaining to a whole range of SSRi's. Moreover, she has recently drafted an article

Re: Shocking Behaviour!

I don't get it. What's this all about?

The 67 page pdf file is a compilation of a selection of post I have made here on UKSurvivors
However - I would like to point out that you really can't believe everything that Bob Fiddaman posts, writes, sends on or forwards - because he has a penchant for creative editing to make things fit his own agenda

This is great news, but I am still very concerned that you are stirring up a hornets nest with out a contingency plan!

I don't want to upset you at this time of triumph, and I know I have already voiced my concerns about this, but I still think the way this is heading it's going to put a lot of people at risk from their Dr's

I don't want to upset you at this time of triumph, and I know I have already voiced my concerns about this, but I still think the way this is heading it's going to put a lot of people at risk from their Dr's ignorance and incompetence.

Making people aware of Seroxat addiction and the ongoing court case against GSK is fine - but I feel your jeopardizing peoples health by not warning them about what to do other than giving out your site address and that of your solicitors.

Not everyone who reads the news paper articles will have net access or the ability when in a drug-fug induced state of panic to rationalize about the best course of action.

Some might just stop taking it, many will go to their Dr's because of the publicity and say they are not happy with this drug - their Dr's will merely offer them an alternative, another SSRI or worse.

This fact has already been demonstrated and proven by Faye's last visit to her Dr, luckily she new enough to know the additional problems this would cause and refused to swap!

Derek fight your fight - but please look a little further than just
